Clearframe

A review workspace for a clearer next decision.

The work, its feedback and the decision record in one proposed review journey.

Illustrative content. Not a shipped product.

Outer arc: 2/4 overall.
Inner arcs: UX01 2/2, AD01 0/2.

Plenty of feedback. No visible decision.

Comments can accumulate across threads, calls and files. The next version still needs a clear choice and a reason.

“The spacing feels calmer.”

“Could this go larger?”

“Looks close to me.”

Decision

Still pending

A design hypothesis, not a research finding. Comments shown are fictional.

Proposed review journey

01

See what changed

Compare versions and locate the current work.

02

Understand the context

Read the brief beside anchored feedback.

03

Record the next move

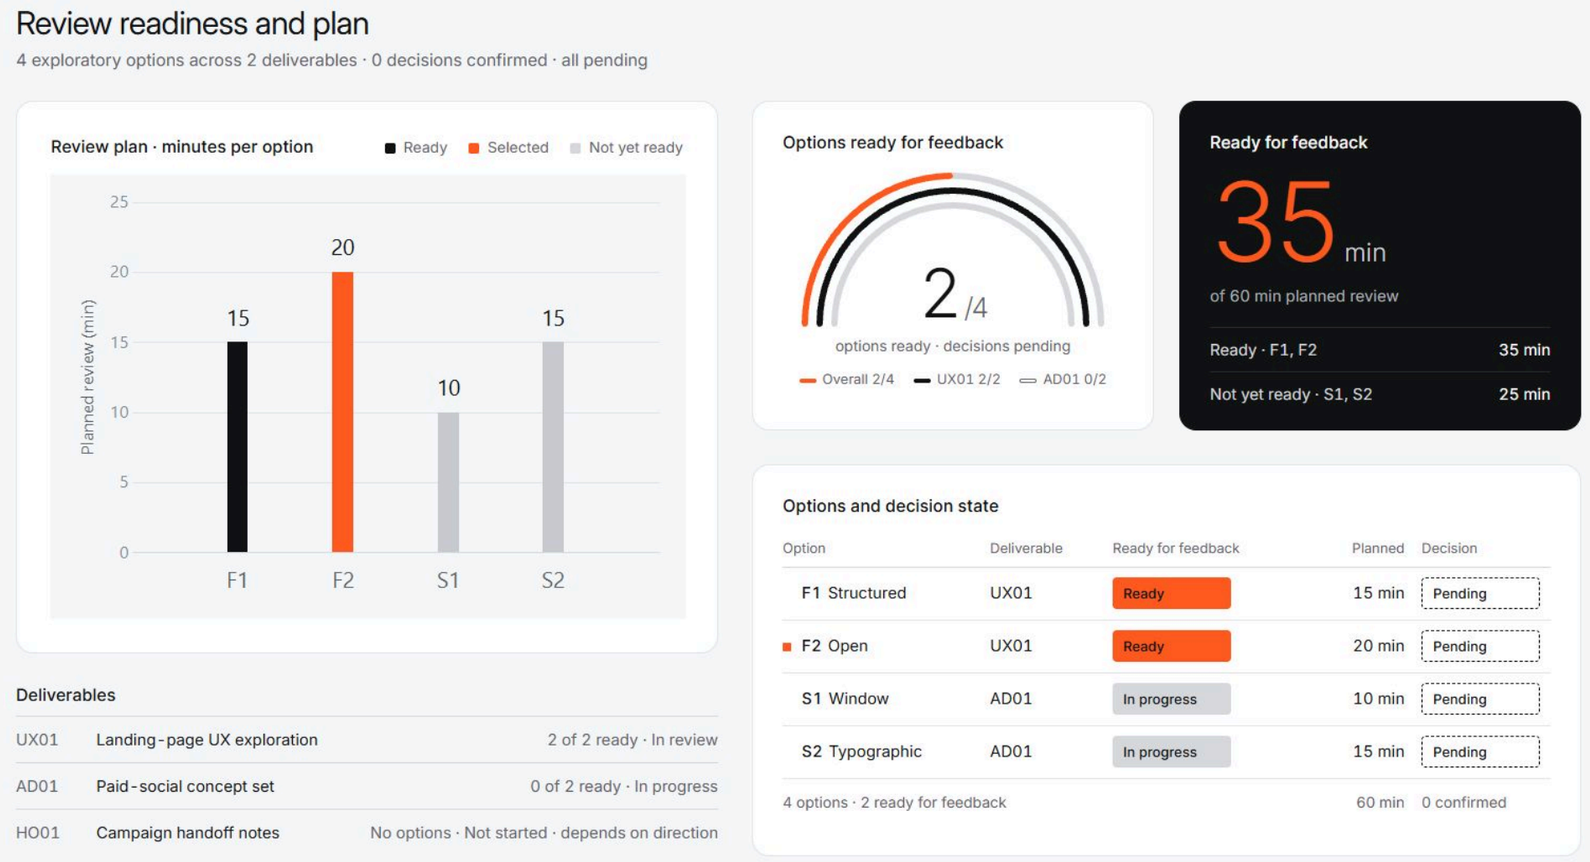

Name the choice, reason, owner and next action.

Readiness opens an option for feedback.

Approval needs its own record.

Black line: available capacity. Bars: planned review time. 60 min across ten illustrative working days.

Northline, fictional planning data. 60 min planned in total. The two ready options account for 35 min. All four decisions remain Pending.

Ready. Time. Decision.

The hierarchy separates what can be reviewed, the planned effort and the decision state.

A comment is input.
A decision is a record.

Comments

Observations and suggestions can disagree. A comment alone does not confirm a direction.

“The headline competes with the sun now.”

Mira’s fictional comment in the existing Northlight poster specimen.

A recorded decision

Decision	Keep the larger sun; reduce headline weight.
Rationale	The sun carries the series; the headline only needs to be found.
Owner	Mira, creative lead
Next action	Prepare v5 for one final review.

Separate fictional Northlight poster record. v5 refers to the poster. Northline’s four decisions remain Pending.

Quiet surfaces. One signal color.

Inter gives the interface a quiet, precise voice. Cool surfaces keep detail readable. Orange focuses attention on review status or a selection.

Approved v4 planning study. F2 is ready and selected in orange.

The earlier art-direction image. The v4 planning studies explore cooler, lighter surfaces.

The unresolved work matters, too.

Proposed recovery states keep the context visible.

Conflicting feedback

Keep both views beside the brief. Leave the option Pending until an owner records a reasoned choice.

Pending

Reopened decision

Preserve the earlier rationale. State what changed, why it reopened and the next action.

History retained

When work is not ready, the review view should say what is missing. Readiness never doubles as approval.

What I would test next

Planned task walkthroughs: identify the latest version, distinguish comments from decisions, and recover from conflicting or reopened feedback.

Research, usability testing and performance evaluation remain future work.
